Hurricane Ian – FL

Hurricane Ian is currently moving toward Florida. Projections are that it will hit the Florida mainland at some point today whereby it will potentially be a Category 4 hurricane. The Governor of Florida has already declared a State of Emergency based on the potential path of Hurricane Ian.

Although FEMA has yet to make federally-declared disaster declarations, all counties in Florida are at risk. As a preemptive measure due to the uncertainty of Hurricane Ian, Impac is temporarily ceasing funding of all loans in the state of Florida until further notice. We'll re-evaluate next week and make further determinations from there.
